Narcissa, of Gibson County, was married 19 December 1820 to KINCHEN A. WILBOURNE of Gibson County. They lived in Bedford County for some time, then moved to Henderson County, where they lived til 25 July 1828-1829, at which time he left her. After he was gone two years, she got an attorney to bring a suit for divorce. It was issued in Gibson County. She thought Kinchen was dead. On 18 October 1831 she was married to William Erving of Gibson County. She is now informed and believes that Kinchen is alive and living in Mississippi.

ESSARY, SALLY 13 October 1831 HUMPHREYS COUNTY

Sally, of Humphreys County, was married in 1829 to JOSEPH ESSARY. HE beat her and treated her cruelly and did not provide for his family. He threw her outt of his house, and she begged him to let her stay as she was a considerable distance from her family and had three fatherless children by her former husband, Joel Pool, who had died. She went to a neighbor's and stayed. She then left and with her 3 children went to some friends' and relations'. Petition is accompanied by the signatures of 19 persons.

EVANS, ELIZABETH 1831 HUMPHREYS COUNTY

The marriage bonds between Elizabeth Evans and her husband, ALFRED EVANS, are to be dissolved upon proof that he deserted her and left the state for the last two years and has failed to support her.
Acts of TN, 1831, p.80

EVERITT, SUSANNAH 1826 RHEA COUNTy

Susannah is the wife of SIMEON EVERITT. In 1824 she had had two children and was due again in December. He left her and married another woman and said he didn't plan to return. She now has three children to care for.
Petition is accompanied by the signatures of 34 persons.
76-1826

Polly Jones is granted the privileges of a feme sole, except that of intermarrying with another man. (Her husband's name is not stated.)
Acts of TN, 1822, p.156

JONES, RHODA 10 October 1829 FENTRESS

Rhoda was married in July 1827 to LEWIS JONES. They lived together 4 or 5 months. He spent his time in idleness and dissipation. He abused her and left her with a child not more than 8 days old. He took a woman of ill fame and started to leave the country with her.
Statement by Nelly Groom who had known Rhoda since Rhoda was a small girl, and stated that Lewwis said he came from Virginia. Nelly helped them get back together, but Lewis deserted Rhoda again. Lewis also sold all the property (land, cattle, mare, and household furniture) that Rhoda had managed to acquire before their marriage through her own industry.
Statements by Asa Johnston, John W. Simpson, Elizabeth Atkinson, Jr.

JONES, SUSANNAH 1821? WILSON COUNTy

Susannah was married to DAVID JONES in North Carolina. They lived a few years in that state, during which time he drank. She left her parents and other relations and came with him to Wilson County, Tennessee. He had promised to quit drinking but continued to do so, and in about 2 years, he spent all they had. On 6 March 1818 he left her with 2 children, one ca 6 weeks old.
Petition is accompanied by the signatures of 12 persons.

and supposed to be dead, but he soon recovered and took his place in the fight. He participated in the fight at Kinston, N. C., and aided by one of his comrades fired the bridge over the Neuse river while the opposing armies were fighting each other from the opposite banks. Later he was ordered to Charleston, thence to Mississippi, where he was in the second battle of Jackson, was ordered back to Charleston, and from there to Asheville, and during the closing period of the war was in numerous fights in east Tennessee. After the close of hostilities he engaged for a time in farming and then embarked in business as a merchant at Union. During his leisure hours he has written a full history of the Macbeth light artillery. In May, 1865, he was married to Mary Thomson, of Spartanburg, and they have four children. The other five brothers who were in the Confederate service were: James Washington Scaife, who enlisted in Arkansas and was elected lieutenant-colonel of his regiment, served in that rank until after Shiloh, and then resigned and returning to Arkansas was very active as commander of a company for home protection; subsequently resided in Arkansas until his death in 1893. Thomas Jefferson Scaife, who also enlisted in Arkansas, in his brother's command, was taken prisoner and confined at Camp Chase, Ohio, where his health became so broken that he died soon after his release. William Jackson Scaife, ordnance officer of the Fifth South Carolina regiment, was taken prisoner at Seven Pines, and after a year's imprisonment returned home in such a condition that he finally died from the effects. Charner Terry Scaife was orderly-sergeant of the Macbeth light artillery during the war, and is now a successful minister of the gospel in Spartanburg county; and Robert Beatty Scaife, who enlisted when seventeen years old, in 1864, served until the end. He practiced medicine in Arkansas until his death a few years ago. The coat-of-arms of the Scaife family, as given in Fairbairn's "Crests of Great Britain and Ireland," is an escallop, reversed, which is significant of the original meaning of the name, which was "skiff."

Osborne L. Schumpert, born in Newberry county, S. C., was the son of Jacob K. and Harriet (Abney) Schumpert, both natives of South Carolina. His great-grandfather was William Schumpert, a native of Berlin, who, upon emigrating to America, located in Newberry county. Mr. Schumpert's mother, Harriet Abney, comes from good old Revolutionary stock, her grandfather and several uncles having served in that war on the colonial side. Mr. Schumpert was reared in Newberry county, on his father's plantation, and at the age of ten he was placed in the Newberry college, which he left at the age of fourteen, 1862, to enter the war. He joined Company E, Third South Carolina regiment, and served in it through the war, except when on detailed service as scout, as orderly of the regiment, and as courier for Gen. J. B. Kershaw. He participated in the battles of Second Manassas, Williamsburg, Seven Days' fight, Sharpsburg, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, Knoxville, Wilderness, Spottsylvania Court House, Second Cold Harbor, Petersburg and Cedar Creek. He was wounded at Gettysburg, and on October 19, 1864, received a severe wound at Cedar Creek, his thigh bone being broken by a minie ball. Fainting from loss of blood he fell from his horse and was captured; but being unable to be moved he was left at a farm house and was subsequently taken within the Confederate lines. When the war closed he was in a hospital at Staunton, Va., not having yet recovered from his wound. Returning home he re-entered Newberry college, but soon afterward went to Europe and finished his education at the university of Copenhagen. He returned home and taking up the study of law was admitted to the bar in 1872 and at once entered upon the practice in Newberry. He has served two terms in the State legislature, eight years as solicitor of the Seventh judicial circuit, and in 1898 was a prominent candidate for governor of South Carolina. He is a member of James D. Nance camp and has served on the staffs of two different governors of South Carolina. During the political excitement of 1876 he was colonel of the militia of Newberry county, and took a conspicuous part in the stirring scenes at Columbia. He was married, January 5, 1876, to Miss Mamie E. Pool, daughter of J. P. Pool, and they have two children living, a son and daughter: Aumerle, who was a member of the First South Carolina regiment in the Spanish war, and Miss Thyra, a student at the college for women at Columbia.

ties, and entering the Virginia military institute was graduated in 1849. Manifesting at an early age an ability that warranted important trusts, he was commissioned in 1851 to sail to China as supercargo for Nye Brothers & Co., in the silk trade, and continued in this business for nine years, making voyages to China, Siam, and other countries. Abandoning this occupation in 1860 he returned to Virginia and at Lynchburg was married in the same year to Miss Nannie Saunders, daughter of the late James Saunders, M. D. With his wife he made a journey to Canada, and remained there until the following year. On their return to Lynchburg he suffered the loss of his wife by untimely death, and in the fall of 1861 he entered the Confederate service, in the engineer corps. He served at the important defensive position of Drewry's bluff, at the center of the Richmond and Petersburg line, until just before the abandonment of that position, when he was ordered to New River Bridge. Returning thence to Lynchburg, he was there at the time of the surrender, and was paroled in May, 1865. In the following August he made a trip to Europe and remained a year, after which he returned to Lynchburg and made that city his permanent residence. For two years he was occupied in the dry goods trade, and then entered the insurance business, in which he has since been engaged.

John W. Poole, during his lifetime a prominent citizen of Petersburg, was born in Dinwiddie county, Va., in 1842. After he had arrived at the age of twelve years he was a resident of Petersburg, where at the outbreak of the war he entered the Confederate service as a private in Company D of the Twelfth Virginia regiment. He served with this command during the year 1861, and in 1862 through the battle of Seven Pines, June 1st, and the Seven Days' fight before Richmond, including Oak Grove and Malvern Hill, and then, his health being seriously impaired by the arduous campaigning which he had experienced, he was transferred to the naval department, and placed in charge of the rope factory at Petersburg. He remained in this important service until the close of the war, and then was engaged in the mercantile business until 1880, when he took control of what is now known as the Powhatan corn mills, which he conducted until his death in 1892. His son, W. E. Poole, who continues the business under the old firm name of J. W. Poole & Son, was born at Petersburg in 1864, and was educated at McCabe's school. In 1894 he was married to Miss Mary E., daughter of J. W. Young, who was a prominent business man of Petersburg and a brave Confederate soldier. Mr. Young was born at Petersburg in 1839, and died at that city in 1893. During the first year of the war he held the position of assistant quartermaster of the Twelfth Virginia regiment, Mahone's brigade, and during the three succeeding years he saw active service as a member of Graham's battery, with the exception of six months when he was detailed to drill the home guards.

Jesse J. Porter, of Louisa Court House, Va., was born August 26, 1836, the son of James D. Porter. His father died in 1879, at the age of seventy-seven years. April 17, 1861, Mr. Porter enlisted as a member of a military company previously organized, left his home for Harper's Ferry, where he assisted in the capture of the place and its military stores. A month later he was engaged in a

Dr. Pollock were of Scotch descent. His great-grandfather, William Pollock, served in the revolutionary war, and a great-uncle in the war of 1812. The latter was wounded and died at Fort Caswell, near Wilmington, N. C. His brother, W. D. Pollock, lieutenant of the naval reserves of Kinston, enlisted for service in the recent war with Spain, and his son, Raymond, while at home from the Jefferson medical college of Philadelphia, offered his services to the governor of North Carolina in the same cause.

Lieutenant James B. Pool, of Taylorsville, prominent for many years as an official of Alexander county, and a gallant soldier of Lane's brigade, was born in Alexander county, April 5, 1841, son of William Pool, also a native of North Carolina. His grandfather, Jesse Pool, was a native of Dinwiddie county, Va.; his great-grandfather, William Pool, fought in the Indian wars, and the immediate ancestor of the latter was Samuel Pool, a native of England, who served in the patriot army of the revolution. In September, 1861, Mr. Pool enlisted in an organization which became Company G of the Thirty-seventh regiment, North Carolina troops, and was stationed at New Bern until the spring of 1862, when it fought under General Branch, against the Federals at that place, and then was ordered into Virginia. With the army of Northern Virginia he was in battle at Hanover Court House, Mechanicsville, Gaines' Mill, Frayser's farm, Malvern hill, Cedar run, Manassas Junction, Manassas Plains, Ox Hill, Harper's Ferry, Sharpsburg, Shepherdstown, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. During this service he was promoted from private to third lieutenant early in his career, then to second lieutenant and to first lieutenant in December, 1862. He was wounded at Second Manassas, Cedar Mountain, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, but not so severely as to keep him out of any of the battles of his regiment. Finally this devoted soldier was captured at Gettysburg. He was in command of sharpshooters on the second day, and on the third day was captured in the famous assault of Pettigrew's command on Cemetery hill. From that time until March 14, 1865, he was held as a prisoner of war at Johnson's island, Lake Erie. On his return to his home he engaged in teaching school and in farming, and in the latter occupation is still interested as the owner of a fine farm in Alexander county. In 1871 he was elected register of deeds, and after ten years of service in that capacity, represented his county in the legislature. Subsequently he was a member, successively, of the board of education and the board of county commissioners, until 1891, when he was elected to his present position, clerk of the court. Since 1869 he has also been a minister of the Baptist church; and until the failure of his health, filled several pastorates. He is one of the board of trustees of Taylorsville collegiate institute. By his marriage, in 1865, to Elizabeth Teague, he has three children living: Oscar F. F., Osmund F., and Effie Alma. Two brothers of Captain Pool were in the Confederate service: N. A. Pool, captain of Company K, Seventh regiment, and Christopher C. Pool, of Company G, Thirty-seventh regiment.

Captain Stephen Porter, of Andrews, Cherokee county, is a native of Blount county, Tenn., son of Andrew Porter, a native of Virginia, who married Betsy Treadaway, of South Carolina, and moved to Tennessee in 1840. Andrew Porter enlisted in Company K, Fifth Tennessee cavalry, in 1862, and was with his regiment in the Tenessee and Kentucky campaigns, including the battles of Perryville and Richmond, until captured during the battle of Marysville, in January, 1863, when he was imprisoned at Camp Morton, Ind., where he died from hardships and exposure in March, 1864. Captain Stephen Porter, born in 1841, enlisted in the same company with his father and shared his early service, receiving a wound in the battle of Richmond, Ky. He served in many cavalry engagements, received two slight wounds in the battle of Chickamauga; at Shelbyville in a hand-to-hand encounter, was wounded in the head by a saber cut; and at Marysville was shot through both hands and so badly disabled that a comrade was detailed to assist him from the army, it appearing that his fighting days were past. He made his way to Franklin, N. C., and at the end of six months felt able to return to the fight. He then organized and was elected captain of a company which was attached to Thomas' legion as Company K. He was sent on scouting duty to Tennessee, served with the forces under General Vaughn, was on duty guarding the graduated in 1850 at the military academy at New Haven, Conn. He was in business at Augusta when the war between the States began, and in the early part of 1861 went with the Clinch Rifles, of which company he had for some time been a member, to Macon, Ga., to be mustered into the Confederate service, but was among those who were turned away for the time as superfluous by Governor Brown. Returning to Augusta, he at once began to assist in the raising of a cavalry company, of which, at its organization, he was elected first lieutenant. This company, being sent to the coast, was merged in the Twenty-second Georgia battalion of cavalry, of which William White was colonel. About the beginning of 1863 the Twenty-second battalion was sent to Charleston and assigned to provost duty under General Beauregard, serving there until May, 1864, when it was merged with other commands in the Seventh regiment Georgia cavalry, of which, after the death of Colonel White, J. L. McAllister was colonel. Of Company A of this regiment Mr. Platt was appointed first lieutenant. He went with the regiment to Virginia, being appointed its adjutant with rank of captain, and in that State was engaged at Nance's Shop and many minor skirmishes, and finally in the great cavalry battle at Trevilian's Station, where his horse was killed under him and he was taken prisoner. In this battle Colonel McAllister was killed, Maj. Whiteford D. Russell was mortally wounded, and Lieutenant-Colonel Anderson was disabled by a wound. Lieutenant Platt was sent to Point Lookout and later to Fort Delaware, where he was held as a prisoner of war until July, 1865. After his release from captivity he returned to Augusta and engaged in the furniture business, which had been his occupation before the war. He has been a member of the city council and has held other positions under the city government. In business life he is active and prominent as manager of the Augusta Home Furnishing company.

William F. Poole, of Atlanta, was born in Fulton county, Ga., November 29, 1843, son of Thomas M. Poole, a native of Greenville, S. C., who became a farmer in Georgia and was in the military service of his State as a soldier in the Florida Indian war. Mr. Poole began the study of medicine at the age of eighteen years, and had taken a course of lectures at the Atlanta medical college before the outbreak of war in 1861. When hostilities began he went to the coast as a private in Company B of the Third regiment Georgia State troops, and served for six months. Then returning home, he subsequently enlisted in Company E of the Fifty-sixth regiment Georgia infantry, in the Confederate States service, under the command of Col. E. P. Watkins. Being at once detailed to the medical department of the regiment, he served in that capacity, as assistant to Surgeon G. W. Peddy, during the campaigns in Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and South and North Carolina. He went through the siege of Vicksburg, and after the surrender of that army and post, was left there in charge of forty sick and wounded soldiers of his regiment, whom he took by transport, upon their recovery, by way of New Orleans to Mobile. During the course of his service he was often in places of danger, but was never wounded, his closest call being a bullet through the hat. Since the war he has been engaged in farming in Fulton county, and has been notably successful in that vocation. With his comrades he is yet associated as a member of W. H. T. Walker camp, United Confederate veterans. In 1869 Mr. Poole was married to Elizabeth H. Gilbert, and they have four sons and a daughter.

Theophilus O. Powell, M. D., well known throughout the State as the able superintendent of one of the great charitable institutions of Georgia, in his early manhood was a Confederate soldier, and made an honorable record in Virginia. Two of his brothers were also in the military service of the South: William N., who was killed at Malvern Hill, in 1862, and James M., who died in the army. Dr. Powell was born in Brunswick county, Va., March 21, 1840, and came to Hancock county, Ga., with his parents when he was about six years of age. He was educated largely under the tutelage of Richard Malcomb Johnson, and was graduated in 1859 at the Georgia medical college, at Augusta. Soon afterward he embarked in practice as a physician at Sparta, and was thus occupied when the land became involved in war. As soon as he felt that he was needed by his country, in the fall of 1861, he volunteered as a private soldier in Company I of the Forty-ninth regiment Georgia infantry, under Col. Andrew J. Lane. The Forty-ninth was a part of Gen. E. L. Thomas' brigade of A. P. Hill's light division, and had a gallant part in the Seven Days' battles before Richmond. Private Powell shared this service until which leads from Columbia to Mount Pleasant. The country surrounding Mount Pleasant is claimed to be the finest in the State. To strangers visiting Maury County this question is always put: "Have you been out on the Mount Pleasant Pike?" Mount Pleasant was founded about 1820. Old Father Hunter, a famous bear hunter and Primitive Baptist preacher, was one of the first settlers in that vicinity. Other settlers were the McGees, Griffiths, Craigs, Coopers, Mitchells, Stockards, Pickards and Baileys. Not far from these were the Nixons, Buckners and Grimeses. The first merchant in Mount Pleasant was Lyman D. Brewster, who moved from Spring Hill to that place about 1820. There were formerly some very large landed estates lying in the vicinity of Mount Pleasant, but these have mostly been divided up into smaller farms.

Among the early business men of Mount Pleasant were Hervey Hoge, Lemuel Long, Samuel P. Lea, Messrs. Willson & Jennings. Among the later ones were Henry A. Miller, Ephraim Dickson, Alex Williams and E. O. Cross. Among the noted physicians are noticed Dr. Hamilton, Dr. Thorenot (who died of cholera in 1834), Dr. Sprinkle, Dr. Stockard, Dr. Sansom and Dr. Jordan, who is believed to be the oldest man in the county, and still vigorous. Among the later physicians are Dr. Hunter, Dr. Long and Dr. Williams. Hunter's Church, about one mile south of Mount Pleasant, is contemporary with Zion, and was built about 1810. The first Presbyterian ministers here were Duncan Brown, Hugh Shaw and John S. Frierson. A new church has since been built at Mount Pleasant and the membership of the church transferred there. The early Methodist ministers were John Akin, John Daniel, John Nixon, Kesterson and Tidwell. This denomination has a large and flourishing church at Mount Pleasant. There are also quite a number of Cumberland Presbyterians in this section, and these people have an old camp ground and church at Mount Joy, on the west fork of Bigby, about three miles from Mount Pleasant. Good schools have been maintained at Mount Pleasant for more than a half century. Mathew D. Cooper is said to have taught school there as early as 1809–10. Further notice of the schools of Mount Pleasant and Mount Joy will be made under the head of "Schools." Cross Bridge is the name of a little place about ten miles from Columbia, on the Columbia & Hampshire Pike. At this place is a store, postoffice and an academy. Hampshire is a small village in District No. 15, and is about fifteen miles west of Columbia, and is situated on Cathey's Creek. Lands in this neighborhood were settled in 1807. The first settlers in the neighborhood were the Akins, Loves, Farises, Whitesides, Lusks, Williamses, Erwins, Alexanders, Peytons, Bells, Isoms, Biffles and Burnses. Hampshire is a place of some wealth and business. Game in this vicinity was formerly very abundant. It is said that the wife of William Alexander killed a deer with a smoothing iron in 1808. Near Hampshire on the creek below were settled the Kennedys, Malones and Catheys, the latter giving the name to the stream. The first Presbyterian church in this neighborhood was organized by the Rev. James White Stephenson, who was then pastor of Zion Church. The first church of the Primitive Baptists was organized by the Rev. Mr. McCaleb, who, with the Rev. McConico, was the first minister of that persuasion. The first Methodist preacher was the Rev. John Akin. In the Cathey neighborhood are a Presbyterian and a Christian Church; the latter has quite a large congregation. The first school teachers in the neighborhood were Rev. John Akin, Asoph Enloe and Henry Young. Bigbyville is about nine miles south of Columbia. The origin of the place dates about 1834 or 1835. The village is quite small, and has made little progress, in a commercial sense, for a number of years. It was incorporated a number of years ago, but in April, 1882, it surrendered its charter. Settlements began in the vicinity of Bigbyville about 1807. Among the early settlers were the Hendersons, Reeses, Alexanders, Smiths, Matthews, Hannas, McCains, Perrys, Scotts and Zollicoffers. John J. Zollicoffer, father of Gen. Felix K. Zollicoffer, died on his farm near Bigbyville, and here, too, the General was born. Frederick Zollicoffer, a brother of the General, was one of the first merchants in Bigbyville. The place contains the usual number of business houses of a place of its size; also a Methodist church and a Masonic hall.

Not far from Bigbyville, near the head waters of the Little Bigby, is what is calle Southport. William McConnell is said to have been the first settler in this vicinity. He built a tannery near where the village stands. Near the place were the McKnights, Galloways, Mathewses and Ralstons. Near here also lived and died Col. William Pillow. The Methodists have a church here and the Christians have one near the place. The first lodge of Good Templars in Maury County was organized at Southport by the Rev. Mr. Hensley in 1868. Near the dividing line between Maury and Giles Counties, at source of Little Bigby, is a cave of considerable size. Here saltpetre was obtained for the powder-mill that first stood in Columbia.

Williamsport is situated in the western part of the county on Duck River. The land where the town now stands was entered by Edward Williams and a ferry was established by him at that place called "Williams' Ferry." The town was laid out in 1817 by Edward Williams, and being on the river was very naturally named Williamsport. The town was incorporated in 1817 by an act of the Legislature, but the charter was allowed to lapse after a time, but was re-incorporated in November, 1845, and the charter amended in 1855. Among the early settlers in and about Williamsport were the Cooks, Williamses, Pools, Edwardses, Comptons, Oliphants, Bullocks and Englishes. Across the river were the Leipers, Greenfields and Colemans. Hugh Leiper gave name to Leiper's Creek. The first physician of Williamsport was Dr. James G. Smith, who came to the county with the Greenfields. Dr. Thomas Greenfield came out from Maryland and settled Greenfield Bend. Williamsport was in an early day an important shipping point, being on the river as it was. The boats used were flat-boats, keel-boats and pirogues. John Muirhead, who lived south of Gordon's Ferry, and Samuel Oliphant are said to have built the first flat-boat that ever floated out of Duck River to New Orleans. Maj. John Bullock, John O. Cook and James Blakely are said to have brought the first salt from the famous "saline works," near Shawneetown, Ill. This was as early as about 1814. The first merchant in Williamsport was George Hicks. Several distinguished business and professional men have lived in Williamsport; among them were Powhattan Gordon, Abraham Church and Dr. Samuel S. Porter. Although in a healthful section of the country, Williamsport was scourged by cholera in 1835. The town is surrounded by good farming country and has its complement of churches, schools, business and professional men. In the same district, No. 14, is a village or settlement called Saw Dust Valley, the center of a prosperous community. In this vicinity is the well-known old Methodist camp ground called Mount Nebo. Near the old camp ground is the modern church of Mount Nebo.

In the First District, in the northwestern part of the county, is a settlement called Kinderhook. The particular place mentioned lies on the line of the old Natchez Trace. The first settler in that region is said to have been a man named Kersey. A county may fail to name some insignificant place Boston or Charleston, but it never fails to have a Kinderhook.

On a branch of the Big Bigby, in the southwestern part of the county, is New York. It is more the name of a settlement than a town. It contains a store, Scott Mill, and one or two shops. Near the place is a Presbyterian Church, and about one mile from the place is a Methodist Church. In the Eleventh District is a neighborhood called Enterprise. There was formerly a store and business shop and a mill there. The place is too far from railroad communication to thrive, although surrounded as it is by fine lands. In the vicinity of Enterprise are a Methodist and a Baptist Church. Rally Hill lies in the eastern part of the county, about fifteen miles from Columbia. The early settlers in this district, the Twenty-fifth, were the Hardisons, Boyds, Peays, Billingtons, Strattons, Hurts, Derryberrys, Smiths, Hueys, Foglemans and others. Other centers in the Twenty-fifth District are Glenn's Store, where there is also a postoffice, Hurt's Cross Roads, Orr's Cross Roads; the latter contains an academy and a church, and Hardison's Mill's. There is a postoffice at the last named place. In former days the settlers about Bear and Flat Creeks were wont to come to Columbia and meet their rivals from the vicinity of Culleoka and engage them in the "manly art" of fisticuff. These contests were often long and sometimes bloody, but were simply tests of muscle.

Bennett and [illegible]a Wynn have steam saw and grist-mills, and S. T. Alsup has a water-power saw and grist-mill on Falling Creek, in the Twentieth District; P. W. & T. R. Hearn have a water-power grist-mill on Falling Creek, in the Seventeenth District; John S. Belcher has a steam grist-mill in the Eighth District; Vick & Miller have a water-power grist-mill on Town Branch, and Bailey Peyton one on Spring Creek, in the Tenth District, and W. L. Waters has a steam-power flour, grist and saw-mill in the Sixteenth District.

Although still-houses were more numerous than schoolhouses in the early days of the county, yet the owner and location of the first one can not be learned. Isham Webb had a still in the Eleventh District at an early day, and later James Carrouth, John Forbs, Jerry Johnson, Bolin Wynn, Robert Thomas, Jack Cook and perhaps others, whose names could not be secured, operated stills in various parts of the county, all of which had capacities ranging from one-half to two barrels per day of mash. The old-fashioned worm was used, and the houses were small, unhewn-log buildings, and in some instances the still was located out of doors. These stills all disappeared several years before the late civil war.

Considerable cotton was grown in the county, and it is claimed that the first crop of this article grown west of the Cumberland Mountains was on the farm of John Donnelson, afterward the father-in-law of Andrew Johnson, in Clover Bottom, this county, some time about the organization of the county. As early as 1802 there were numerous cotton-gins in operation in the county: One by George Alexander, near Center Hill; one by John B. Walker, on Hickory Ridge; one by Moses Echols, on the waters of Spencer Creek; one by Daniel Trigg, and others by Alaman Trigg, Henry Betts, John Watson, Robert Goodloe, Seth P. Pool, Joseph Sharp, Joshua Kelley, Edward Bondward, Thomas Wilson and Thomas Green in various parts of the country, the exact location of which is unknown to the citizens of the present. These have all disappeared, as they ceased to be of use many years ago.

The first store in the county was kept by John Herrod in 1800, but the location of his store can not be learned. It was a small mercantile establishment indeed, the stock consisting of a few standard articles of staple groceries, ammunition, nails, tobacco and whisky, all of which were brought from the older States on pack mules or horses. Salt sold from $8 to $10 per bushel; nails at 25 cents per pound, and everything else in proportion. Herrod also kept tavern at his store, they both being at his dwelling-house. A short time afterward George C. Hodge and Solomon George opened similar stores, or ordinaries as they were then called, in the neighborhood of Smith Fork. Other early store-keepers were John Gibson, Samuel Tillman, Huldah Sherrill, Richard Bryan, William C. Mitchell, George Cummings, John Lumpkins, John Brown, Isham Davis, George Jarrett, Carter White, William Stewart, Elisha Dismukes, Higdon Harrington and David Martin, all of whose stores were located in various portions of the county outside of the county seat.

So far as known, the oldest house now standing in the county was built by Samuel Sherrill, on Barton Creek, about two miles southwest of Lebanon. It was built some time in 1800, of hewn cedar logs, the doors and shutters being made of split boards, smoothed with the drawing-knife, and fastened together with nails made by hand. The house is strong and still serviceable.

Josiah S. McClaim, who was county clerk for a period of over forty years, now dead, is said to have been the first male white child born in the county, he having been born in January, 1797.

Wilson County was established by an act of the Third General Assembly of Tennessee, passed October 26, 1799, three years after the organization of the State. The act establishing the county is in substance as follows: "An act reducing the limits of Sumner County and establishing two new counties," etc., that part referring to Wilson County being in the following language: "Sec. 4, And be it enacted, that another new county be established by the name of Wilson, to be contained within the following described bounds: Beginning upon the south bank of the river Cumberland, at low water mark, at the mouth of Drake Lick Branch, the northeast corner of Davidson County; thence with the line

McClain. The exact place of holding this first session of the court, i. e., the location of Harpole's house, is a matter of much dispute at the present time; yet after diligent search and numerous inquiries from reliable persons the writer is of the opinion that the house stood on the north side of Spring Creek about five miles north of the present county seat. The court was organized by the election of Charles Kavanaugh as chairman; Robert Foster, clerk; Samuel Rosborough, sheriff; John Allcorn, register; John W. Payton, trustee; William Gray, ranger; William Quesenbury, surveyor; and Benjamin Seawell, solicitor. Among the first acts of the court were to admit John C. Hamilton to practice as an attorney, prove a deed of conveyance of 640 acres of land from Michael Coonrad to his brother Henry, and order a road laid off from the forks of Round Lick Creek to the "25-mile tree," nearly opposite the house of Edward Mitchell. The March term, 1800, was also held at Harpole's, as were the June, September and December terms, during which sessions John Hogg and George K. Wynn exhibited their ear marks; John Herrod was granted license to keep an ordinary, permissions were given to William Trigg, Joseph Hendrick and Mathew Figures to erect water grist-mills; Lemuel Herrod, John Dickason, John B. Johnson, Jesse Wharton and Nicholas Perkins were admitted to the bar; $2 was ordered paid for the scalp of each wolf killed in the county; and a tax was levied for county purposes of 6¼ cents on each 100 acres of land—6¼ cents on each white and 12½ cents on each black poll.

The court continued to meet at Harpole's throughout the year 1801, during which time John Herrod took out tavern license, Charles Smith was admitted to the bar, and rates for ferrying were fixed as follows: Man and horse, 6¼ cents; man or horse, 3⅛ cents; cattle and other stock, 3⅛ cents per head; loaded wagon and team, $1; empty wagon and team, 75 cents; four-wheel carriages, $1; two-wheel, 50 cents.

From March until December, 1802, the court met at the house of Henry Turner on Barton Creek, three miles southwest from Lebanon, and from there adjourned to meet at the house of Edward Mitchell, in Lebanon, the new county seat having been laid out and the lots sold on August 16 of that year. Mitchell was allowed by the court 25 cents for each meal and lodging furnished the magistrates during the session of court. During 1803 the court fined Obediah Spradim $1.50 for profanity; James Anderson was granted ordinary license, and the rate of charges for ordinaries was regulated as follows: rum, wine, gin and French brandy, $8 per gallon; whisky or brandy 12½ cents per half pint; lodging 6¼ cents; corn or oats 4 cents per gallon; horse with hay or fodder, 25 cents; pasturage for twenty-four hours, 12½ cents.

In 1804 the March term of court was held at James Anderson's in Lebanon, the June term, at Edward Mitchell's and the September and December terms at Anderson's. Throughout 1805 and until June 1806 the court met at Mitchell's house, at which time the court adjourned to meet at the new and first court house, that building having been completed and placed in readiness for the court during the year. The first court house was a small cedar-log building, with a clapboard roof, and stood on the west side of the Public Square. It was large enough only for the holding of the court, the county officers having their quarters in various houses around the Square. Beyond this meager description nothing more can now be learned, as the memory of the present oldest inhabitant runneth not back that far. The jail was completed a short time previous to the court house. It was also a small cedar-log house, having two apartments, and entrance to the cells was through a trap door in the upper floor, the cells resting on the ground.

The court appointed Jeremiah Brown, John Allcorn and John Wynn a committee in 1806 to award the contract for and superintend the building of a bridge across the creek, which flows through the town (now known as Town Branch), and John Doak, John Harpole and Mathew Figures were appointed a committee to have a stray pen erected. Benjamin Tower was granted ordinary license and Robert Goodloe, Seth P. Pool and Joseph Sharp were appointed cotton inspectors.

In 1807 the court licensed Daniel Tillman to keep an ordinary, appointed Peter Mosley and Edward Bondward cotton inspectors, fined William Talbott 1 cent for inciting a riot, allowed Seth P. Pool $200 for building an office for the accommodation of the county officials, and allowed David Marshall $12 for building a stray pen.

In 1808 the court granted ordinary license to William Mann, and John Cartwright was granted permission to erect and operate a cotton gin. In 1809 the court ordered the removal of the stray pen. James Richmond was appointed cotton inspector, and Isham and Larkin Davis were granted permission to erect a water-power grist-mill. In 1810 Thomas Swain was admitted to the bar. Joel Mann was granted ordinary license, and William Wilson granted permission to erect a grist-mill. In 1811 the old jail was torn down, and a new one erected on the same site. The new building was of brick and cost $1,396. William Seawell was the contractor. In 1812 Charles Swain, James Johnson, Ezekial Bass and Reuben Bullard were each fined by the court for committing assault and battery, and Thomas Bradly, the sheriff, was fined $10 for absenting himself during the sitting of the court. In 1817 the court appropriated $500 for the building of a new court house. The building was completed in 1818. It was of brick and stood in the center of the Public Square. The house was square in shape, one story in height, and had a peaked roof, on the center of which was a square belfry and bell. In 1829 the court levied a poor-house tax of 6¼ cents on each 100 acres of land, 6¼ cents on each white and black poll, and 6¼ cents on each town lot. The court also appointed Etheldred P. Harris, William McSwain and Thomas B. Reise a commission to select suitable ground upon which to locate said poor-house, and erect the necessary buildings. The following year a small tract of land, three miles southwest of Lebanon, was purchased, and a cedar-log house, containing three rooms, was erected as an asylum. A few years afterward a new asylum was erected on a tract of land about six miles southwest of Lebanon, which served as a poor-farm until 1866, when 219 acres of good farm land was purchased of James Davis for $30 per acre, upon which stood a substantial weather-boarded log house. Four log cabins were erected, and such is the poor asylum of the present. A new jail was erected in 1832, which was also of brick, which stood until 18—, when the present substantial brick jail, which stands about two squares from the Public Square on West Main Street, was erected. In 1833 a new floor was laid in the court house. In 1846 the court passed an order for the building of a new court house, which building was not to cost in excess of $8,000. In 1848 the court house was completed, when the old building was torn down. The new court house was of brick, two-stories in height, and stood on Lot No. 8 on the south side of the Public Square, one entrance being on South Cumberland Street. The upstairs was devoted to a circuit court room, while on the lower floor were the quarters of the county officers and the county court room. The building stood until 1881, when it was destroyed by fire, and in January, 1882, the court passed an order for the erection of a new court house, appointing H. G. Johns, G. W. Lewis, J. F. Orgain, L. Drifoos and J. A. Brent a building committee. Subsequently W. A. Lewis, W. H. Brown and John D. Owen were added to the committee. The plans and specifications of the building were prepared by Bruce & Morgan, of Atlanta, Ga., and the contract was awarded to J. F. Bowers & Bros., of Nashville. When complete the building cost $18,306.30. It is a handsome brick structure, two stories in height above the ground, has stone cappings, tin mansard roof, and is supplied with fire-proof vaults and all modern conveniences. The front of the building is highly ornamented, and is set off with an imposing brick portico, with a flight of stone steps leading thereto. On the second floor are two large court rooms, one each for the circuit and county courts, while on the first floor are large, light and well ventilated offices. A handsome stairway leads from the main hall to the court rooms. There are three entrances to the building, which stands on the site of the old court house, one on the Cumberland Street side, one on the Public Square and one on the west side. During the building of the court house the courts were held in the Masonic Hall.

The clerks of the county court and their terms of office have been as follows: Robert Foster, 1799 to 1800; John C. Henderson, 1800 to 1802; John Allcorn, 1802 to 1827; John Stone, 1827 to 1831; Josiah McClain, 1831 to 1871; R. P. McClain, 1871 to 1875; Jesse F. Coe, 1875 to 1880; Abraham Britton, 1880 to 1882; W. M. Harkreader, 1882 to 1886.

James Gregor, two years; Hal Germiny, three years; Charles Dyer, four years; Fal. Hamer, one year; Green Smith, two years, and Ida Kains one year. In 1872 James S. Rŏbinson, Lewis Cannon and Henry Gambell were sentenced, respectively, to terms of seven, three and four years' imprisonment on charges of larceny.

In 1873 John Daniel was sent to prison three years for larceny; Richard Wells, for murder, was sent for five years; and Mitch Pearson was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hung February 13, 1874. Pearson took an appeal to the supreme court, where the verdict of the lower court was reversed. He was again tried and convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to ten years imprisonment at hard labor. In 1874 John Fogelman, Henry Tillman, Jerry Meadows and David Nealey were convicted of larceny and all sent to the penitentiary for one year each. In 1875 William Campbell and Marion Shaffner were sent to the penitentiary for three and one years, respectively, for larceny, and Dr. Shannon, for horse-stealing, was sent to the penitentiary for twelve years.

In 1876 Joseph Williams was sent to prison for two years, and William Barksdale was sent to jail six months on charges of larceny. Thomas Rippy, for murder, was given ten years; William Holder, for house-breaking, was given ten years; and Abraham McMahan and wife recovered $120 damages from Thomas McEwen for slander. In 1877 John Bourke, for house-breaking, and L. Jones, John T. Dean, John Holt, Henry Cannon, Emmet Thompson, Willis Dallis and Harrison Brown were imprisoned for larceny, and John Jones was sentenced to be hung October 4, 1877, for murder. Jones appealed his cause to the supreme court and the decision was reversed, and upon standing trial a second time was sentenced to imprisonment for life. In 1878 Robert Dixon, Philip Shuman, John Miller and Bill Morton were sent to the penitentiary for one year each, and Lafayette Revis, for house-breaking, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and for arson Revis was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, the second sentence to go into effect upon expiration of the first. In 1879 Willis Frazier, for murder, was imprisoned for twelve years; and for larceny James Eakin, Henry Brown, James Waston and Jerry Ball, were sent to prison for one year each. In 1880 John Gaston, James Woodard and Lewis Thomas were given terms of imprisonment for larceny. In 1881 Mary Brown, Lula Thomas and Bob Chambers were given one year imprisonment in the penitentiary on charges of larceny.

In 1882 Frank Atkinson, for horse-stealing, was sent to prison for three years; James Stewart, murder, five years; and Ambrose Tillman, one year; Louis Kiser, two and a half years; Anderson Sims, one year; Henry Beedy, three years; Henry Lovelace, four years; William Allison, one year; Harrison Williams, one year; Bob Webb, one year, and Lewis Castleman two years on charges of larceny. In 1883 Charles Elkins, for murder, was sent to the penitentiary for twenty years; Jim Gamble, arson, two years; James Warren, murder, three years; Nan Roberson, arson, two years; and for larceny Wylie Chambers, Henry Amos, James Flack, R. C. Wyland, Tom Stamps and Tom Ganaway were each given one year imprisonment in the penitentiary. In 1884 Eliza Pepper, for murder, was sent to prison for life, and George Cross, John Cooper and Nelson Johns were given six and three years each, respectively, for horse-stealing; and Henry Mosley and George Stewart, for larceny, was sent up for one year each. In 1885 Carrie Cleveland, for murder, was sent to the penitentiary for three years, and William McGrew and Henry Carwell, for larceny, were each given one year. In 1886 Willis Rankin and Henry Lamb were sent to the penitentiary for one year each on charges of larceny, and Lamb was sentenced to three years' imprisonment on a charge of horse-stealing, his second sentence to commence upon expiration of the first.

The judges who have served on the Bedford bench were Thomas Stuart, James C. Mitchell, Samuel Anderson, Hugh L. Davidson, Henry Cooper, J. W. Phillips, W. H. Williamson and Robert Cantrell, present incumbent. Attorney-generals: Alfred Balch, William B. Martin, Thomas Fletcher, James Fulton, Abraham Martin, E. J. Frierson, Thomas C. Whiteside, H. L. Davidson, William L. Martin, James L. Scudder, B. M. Tillman, James W. Brien, William H. Wisener, Jr., James F. Stokes, M. W. McKnight and Lillard Thompson, present incumbent. Circuit clerks: Daniel McKissack, John T. Neil, Lewis Tillman, James H. Neil, J. M. Phillip, W. B. McBrame and John T. Cannon, present incumbent.

The Chancery Court of Bedford County convened for the first time in 1836, with Hon. B. L. Ridley presiding as chancellor and Robert P. Harrison as clerk and master. The following is a list of the chancellors and clerks and masters: Chancellors—B. L. Ridley, Thomas H. Caldwell, John P. Steele, A. S. Marks, John Burton and E. D. Hancock, the present incumbent. Clerks and masters—Robert P. Harrison, Robert B. Davidson, W. J. Whilthorn, Lewis Tillman, Sr., Lewis Tillman, Jr., T. S. Steele, William H. Morgan and J. S. Butler, the present incumbent. Other county officers have been as follows, in the order given as to terms: Sheriffs—Benjamin Bradford, John Warner, John Wortham, John Warner, William Norville, K. L. Anderson, D. D. Arnold, James Mulins, J. M. Johnson, James Wortham, Garrett Phillips, R. B. Blackwell, Joseph Thompson, J. M. Dunaway, F. F. Fouville, J. J. Phillips, George P. Muse and D. W. Shriver, the present incumbent. Trustees—John W. Cobbs, William Ward, Peter E. Clardy, Daniel Hooser, S. B. Gordon, J. L. Goodrum, William McGill and J. L. Goodrum, the present incumbent. Registers—John Ake, Thomas Davis, A. Vannoy, D. B. Shriver, M. E. W. Dunaway, John W. Thompson, H. H. Holt and C. N. Allen, the present incumbent. School superintendents—John R. Dean, J. L. Hutson, William H. Whiteside and J. H. Allen, the present incumbent.

Among the early distinguished members of the Bedford County bar were Abraham Martin, who was district attorney at one time, and who afterward removed to Montgomery, Ala., where he was elected to the bench; Archibald Yell, who afterward removed to Little Rock, Ark., and of which State he was elected governor and also representative in Congress, William B. Sutton; William Gilchrist; I. J. Frierson, a member of the Legislature at one time; William H. Wisener, at one time a member of the Legislature and speaker of the Lower House; Henry Cooper, who was judge of the circuit court for a number of years, and who was also a member of the Legislature and for several years president of the Lebanon Law School and United States senator for one term; Hugh L. Davidson, who for ten years was judge of the circuit court and attorney-general for one term, and Thomas C. Whitesides, who was district attorney for a while. The bar at present is composed of Edmund Cooper, who was a member of the Legislature one term, served one term as congressman, was first assistant secretary of the United States Treasury under President Johnson, and was also chosen by President Johnson as his private secretary; Thomas H. Caldwell, who was at one time chancellor of this division, attorney-general for the State, was a Grant and Colfax and Blaine and Logan presidential elector, and was Tennessee's State commissioner to the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876; James A. Warder, who was United States district attorney, and is at present one of the nominees of the Republican party for supreme judge; R. B. Davidson; F. B. Ivey; Walter Bearden; Charles S. Ivey; Gen. Ernest Caldwell, who is the present member of the Legislature and who was commissioned a brigadier-general by Gov. Hawkins, and W. B. Bate.

Not a few patriots of the Revolution were among the first settlers of Bedford County, among whom were Capt. Matt and Col. Barclay Martin, who, with five of their brothers, fought for seven years under Gen. Washington; Capt. Christopher Shaw, William Campbell and James Hurst. There were no doubt others, but their names have long since been forgotten, and of them there is no record.

A full company was furnished by Bedford County to the war of 1812, which company was present at the battle of New Orleans. Among the members of the company whose names have been preserved were William Hazlett, John Farrer, Michael Womack, James Gowan, John L. Neil, Philip, James and William Burrow (brothers), John Casteel, William Woods, "Sallie" Sailors, William P. Finch, Robert Furguson, Andrew Mathus, Townsend Fugett, Wesley Rainwater, Benjamin Webb, Martin Hancock, J. L. W. Dillard, John Murphey, Moses Pruitt, John Pool and James Scott. The company was commanded by Capt. Barrett.

Reward $10. For apprehending and securing M'CAULY (sic) and his wife in any jail so that they can be brought to justice. On the 19th last, they stole from my possesion two bound children, Samuel AUL, about 9 years old, and Sophia AUL, about 6 or 7 years old. Both children are small for their age. M'CAULEY (sic) is about 35 years of age and 5 ft. 9 in. tall and by trade a tailor. His wife or the woman who is with him is small, has yellow hair and is about 27 or 28 years old. Nathaniel M'CREARY.

January 4, 1806, Vol. 5, No. 45

On the 1st Monday in July next, I will petition the court of Rutherford County for a division of 3840 acres known as Capt. Joseph MONTFORD's survey. B. M'CULLOCH.

Reward $10. Deserted, Bartlet Lunsford JAMES born in Halifax County, North Carolina. He is 19 years old, 5 ft. 6 in. tall, of fair complexion and has gray eyes. William MACKEA, Major Artillerist.

Will all persons having claims against the estate of Wm. MITCHELL, dec., please come forward. Edward HARDING, executor.

John CRIDDLE has commenced the saddle and harness business in the house formerly occupied by Wm. CALDWELL.

I will teach the French language. D. CALAIS.

Whereas about 9 years ago, I came to the Mero District from Holston County. I made a will leaving the tract of land and plantation to my son Samuel BUCHANON then held in Holston County. Instead of drawing up a will, I have been informed that it was a note for $3000. Relying on the integrity of the person who read the will, I signed it. I am illiterate. My son Samuel has died and the bond which should have been my will has fallen into the hands of his executors. I am determined not to pay said bond as it was fraudulently obtained. Robert BUCHANON.

Stewart County, Tennessee. The following tracts of land have been reported for nonpayment of taxes for the year 1804. Wm. CURL, S.S.C.

Reputed Owners	Acres	Situation
Amos BIRD	1280	Saline
Samuel CROCKETT	640	South Side Cumberland
Robert FINNER	2560	Bear & Dyer Creeks
Edward HEART	640
Hayden WELLS	400	North Side Cumberland

On the 2nd of March next, there will be a public sale in Clarksville, directed by the court of Montgomery county, of 420 acres that belong to Andrew CRESWELL. The property was taken at the influence of William R. BELL, assignee of John SHELBY, Hugh F. BELL, and William R. BELL. John COCKE, shff.
